Texas Tech University IRB2019-238 Approved January 2020

Do you have experiences publishing in scholarly journals?

If you have had experience publishing in scholarly journals, have thoughts on the Open Access movement, or have had interactions with predatory journals/ publishers, this study may be for you.

http://www.depts.ttu.edu/comc/research/grants/stepp/

STEM Training in Ethics of Publication Practices

We are looking for individuals in STEM fields at all stages of their career who have experience in scholarly publishing, specifically in relation to either predatory publishing or the open access movement.

Participants will be asked about their perceptions of the Open Access movement, predatory publishing, and concepts related to the ethics of creating and publishing good science through an individual interview, conducted virtually.

Participants will receive a $20 digital amazon gift card upon completion of the interview.

To participate or to get more information:

Project Website

Recruitment Form

TEXAS TECH UNIVERSITY
College of Media & Communication™

Dr. Amy Koerber, (PI)

Professor in Communication Studies
Associate Dean for Administration & Finance

amy.koerber@ttu.edu

This project is part of a National Science Foundation Grant (Grant # 1926348), entitled "Standard: STEM Training in Ethics of Publication Practices (STEPP)," and is subject to the provisions of NSF 18-532 [Cultivating Cultures for Ethical STEM].