How Long Will It Take Me to Graduate With This Major?
Generally speaking, a student can run a degree audit for the explored major by using DegreeWorks. The audit should lay out the [still needed] hours to complete this degree. By doing the math, the remaining time until graduation can be figured out.

However, a better estimate should come from the departmental advisor of that major.

Major advisors have more accurate information about course sequences and course availability.

"How long will it take me to graduate with this major?" would be a good question for your interview with the advisors of your explored majors.
