

Teachers Belong on School Board

- I cannot pinpoint when I first noticed it, but I have always wondered why elected officials both at the district and state level with zero classroom experience or an education background have the authority to shape and implement policy that directly affects students and teachers sans our input/perspective.
  - I ran for school board in my local school district (engage)
  - I built a campaign utilizing my social media to raise funds needed for print material (co-design)
  - Through grassroots fundraising, I was able to purchase print material to engage with voters through block walking, mailers, and text messaging (Implement)
  - Using a voter database, I hired a field director who was able to strategize where I needed to canvass/block walk. (study)
