Proceedings
Comparative Literature Symposium
Texas Tech University
Volume XI

CLASSICAL MYTHOLOGY IN TWENTIETH-CENTURY THOUGHT AND LITERATURE

Edited by Wendell M. Aycock
Theodore M. Klein

Texas Tech Press
Lubbock, Texas
1980
Contents

Preface ................................................................. 5

DEDICATION

Dedication of the Eleventh Annual Comparative Literature Symposium .......................... 15
  Glenn E. Barnett

SYMPOSIUM LECTURES

Some Modern Greek Responses to
  "The Glory That Was Greece" .................................. 21
  Peter A. Bien
The Psychology of Mantic Art in Greek Mythology ................................................. 45
  Richard Caldwell
Mythical Symbols of the Dissolution and Reconstitution of the Self in Twentieth-Century Literature ..................................................... 67
  Lillian Feder
Greek Mythology in Modern Science Fiction:
  Vision and Cognition ................................................ 89
  Sigmund Casey Fredericks
Shakespeare's Theory of Mythology ................................................................. 107
  René Girard
Myth, Song and Theft in the Homeric Hymn to Hermes ......................................... 125
  Theodore M. Klein
The Mythic Component in Oral Traditional Epic:
  Its Origins and Significance ...................................................................... 145
  Albert B. Lord
The Language of The Muses ............................................................................... 163
  Pietro Pucci
Orpheus and Persephone: Uses and Meanings ..................................................... 187
  John B. Vickery

LUNCHEON ADDRESS

T. S. Eliot and the Classical Tradition ......................................................... 215
  Everett A. Gillis

Notes on the Authors ................................................................. 233