THE BODY
and THE TEXT
COMPARATIVE ESSAYS IN LITERATURE AND MEDICINE

Edited by BRUCE CLARKE and WENDELL AYCOCK

TEXAS TECH UNIVERSITY PRESS
1990
CONTENTS

Preface ix

Introduction 1

Part One: History, Theory, Pedagogy

Literature and Medicine: Traditions and Innovations 11
Anne Hudson Jones

Performing Persons: A Locus of Connection for Medicine and Literature 25
William Monroe

Teaching Literature and Medicine: Theoretical, Curricular, and Classroom Perspectives 41
John Woodcock

Part Two: Comparative Literature and Medicine

Literature, Medicine, and the Celebration of the Body in Rabelais, Tolstoi, and Joyce 57
Sidney Monas

Gadding About Quack Like: The Science of Deception and the Practice of Physic in the Narrative of Henry Tufts 77
Daniel E. Williams

Patriarchy, Medicine, and Women Writers in Nineteenth-Century Argentina 91
Lea Fletcher

Medicine and the Case of Emile Zola 103
Garabed Eknoyan and Byron A. Eknoyan

The Image of Medicine in Utopian and Dystopian Fiction 115
Frank Dietz

Numbers, Death, and Time in García Márquez’s Love in the Time of Cholera 127
Manuel Martinez-Maldonado
Part Three: Religion, Society, Politics

The Hippocratic Corpus and Greek Religion
Steven M. Oberhelman 141

The Earthly and Divine Physicians: Christus Medicus in the Croxton Play of the Sacrament
Victor I. Scherb 161

Pestilence and the Body Politic: The Testimony of Poussin, Corneille, and La Fontaine
Franklin Brooks 173

Perverse Medicine: Holocaust Doctoring in William Styron’s Sophie’s Choice
Robert Franciosi 195

Bruce Clarke 207

Notes on the Authors 219