

The LONE STAR GRADUATE DIVERSITY COLLOQUIUM is visiting West Texas this year. On MARCH 28 AND 29, 2008, the deans of the Graduate School at Texas Tech University invite you to join us on our Lubbock campus.

PURPOSE. The Lone Star Graduate Diversity Colloquium is a collective effort by all colleges and universities in Texas to expand the pool of prospective graduate students that all graduate programs can recruit from. The primary purpose of this event is to encourage more under-represented minorities and women currently enrolled at Texas colleges and universities to stay in Texas to complete their graduate education. Our target group is sophomore and junior undergraduate students and master's students planning to pursue doctoral degrees.

HISTORY. Texas A&M University hosted the inaugural Lone Star Graduate Diversity Colloquium in 2006 and the University of Texas hosted the event in 2007. Hundreds of undergraduates from across the state, accompanied by their graduate school administrators, were introduced to the myriad and exciting graduate school opportunities available in Texas.

FUNDING. Organizers of the Lone Star Graduate Diversity Colloquium encourage the promotion of the event on every college and university campus in Texas and ask our institutional colleagues to sponsor the participation of their students at the event.

SCHEDULE. Events are planned beginning at 3:30 p.m. on Friday, March 28 through 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 29. In one location, students will have the opportunity to attend sessions related to applying to graduate school, entrance exams, funding graduate school, distance education options, and many more. A recruitment fair is also planned with graduate and health sciences institutions represented from across the state. Scholarship drawings will be held and door prizes will be given away.
