

Eligibility

Eligible graduate students include on-campus and distance education students who are pursuing any master's or doctoral program, graduate certificate program (GCRT), teacher certification program (CERT/FCSC), or joint degree program (for the joint degree, the fellowship will only be applied while you are taking courses within Texas Tech University).

Students pursuing a non-degree such as Post-graduate (PGRD), Graduate Temporary (GTMP), Continuing Professional Educational Development (CPED), or students who are pursuing a degree at the Texas Tech University Law School or Health Sciences Center are not eligible to apply.

Once awarded, a student must remain enrolled in the required number of hours stated in the award notification. Students must also remain in good standing and making satisfactory academic progress toward their degree in order to retain the fellowship/scholarship.

Awards

The majority of the awards range from $3,000 - $5,000/year. Competitive scholarships, from the Graduate School or TTU academic colleges/departments, of at least $1,000 for the academic year qualify students for in-state tuition, if applicable.

Criteria

Scholarship awarding is based on a holistic approach and takes into account all factors surrounding scholarship and need. All of our fellowships are awarded on a competitive basis.

Frequently Asked Questions

What will I be asked to provide as part of my application?

- GPA
- Test Scores, if applicable (GRE, GMAT)
- CV/Resume
- Personal Statement
- Research Statement (optional)
- Scholarly Activity
- Community Service
- Financial – how are you financing your education
- Transcripts -- You need to include transcripts from your current program as well as your immediate prior program. An unofficial copy of your Texas Tech transcript can be obtained from RaiderLink. Official transcripts are not required.
- Letters of recommendation. Applicants may upload one letter of recommendation at their discretion. This is not a requirement.