

TEXAS TECH UNIVERSITY

From here, it's possible.

A photograph of two graduates in black and blue gowns shaking hands. The graduate on the left is wearing glasses and a black cap, while the graduate on the right is older, has a white beard, and is wearing a blue cap with a gold tassel. They are both smiling. The background is blurred, showing other people in red and blue gowns.

Lone Star Diversity Colloquium is intended for students from historically under-represented populations who are interested in attending graduate school within the State of Texas. Conference sessions, workshops, and a recruiting fair are intended to help students in:

- Applying to graduate school
- Preparing for entrance exams
- Seeking funding for graduate school
- Evaluating distance education options for graduate studies
