Plan to take your pets with you in an evacuation. If it is not safe for you to stay, it is not safe for them either.

Know which hotels and motels along your evacuation route will accept and your pets in an emergency. Call ahead for reservations if you know you may need to evacuate. Ask if no-pet policies could be waived in an emergency.

Most Red Cross shelters cannot accept pets because of health and safety concerns and other considerations. Service animals that assist people with disabilities are allowed in Red Cross shelters.

Know which friends, relatives, boarding facilities, animal shelters or veterinarians can care for your animals in an emergency. Prepare a list with phone numbers.

Although your animals may be more comfortable together, be prepared to house them separately.

Include your pets in evacuation drills so that they become used to entering and traveling in their carriers calmly.

Make sure that your pet’s vaccinations are current and that all dogs and cats are wearing collars with securely fastened, up-to-date identification. Many pet shelters require proof of current vaccinations to reduce the spread of disease.

Consider having your pet “microchipped” by your veterinarian.

Learn First Aid for Your Pets
Dogs and cats are more than pets—they’re family. And just like any other family member, pets deserve to be cared for and protected. That’s why the American Red Cross has developed Dog First Aid and Cat First Aid, comprehensive guides to help keep pets healthy and safe. From basic responsibilities, like spaying/neutering and giving medications, to managing cardiac emergencies and preparing for disasters, these guides offer information pet owners can trust.

Contact your local chapter to purchase guide books and first aid kits or log on to the Red Cross Store to see all available products.

How can I prepare?

What should I do?

After a disaster ...

The behavior of pets may change dramatically after a disaster, becoming aggressive or defensive, so be aware of their well-being and protect them from hazards to ensure the safety of other people and animals.

Watch your animals closely and keep them under your direct control as fences and gates may have been damaged.

Pets may become disoriented, particularly if the disaster has affected scent markers that normally allow them to find their home.

Be aware of hazards at nose and paw hoof level, particularly debris, spilled chemicals, fertilizers and other substances that might not seem to be dangerous to humans.

Consult your veterinarian if any behavior problems persist.

Emergency action plans for your family should include your animals—all of your animals.
