The National Ranching Heritage Center

is a 24-acre museum and historical park established to preserve the history of ranching, pioneer life and the development of the livestock industry in North America.

The DeVitt-Mallet Museum Building includes seven galleries of permanent or temporary exhibits and Cogdell's General Store, a Western-style gift shop. Throughout the year, the museum hosts special events and educational programs.

The Foy Proctor Historical Park features 48 structures that were relocated from various ranches and restored on the museum grounds. They are authentically furnished or outfitted to the time period interpreted. Structures include a depot and train, one-room schoolhouse, barns, cookhouse, windmills and ranch homes, with each interpreted at a time between the 1780s and the 1950s.
