Recommended Databases

These are just a handful of the many business-related databases available through the Texas Tech University Libraries.

- ScienceDirect
A leading full-text science database covering over 2,500 journals and nearly 20,000 books. Simply start searching for keywords, much like in Google, or “Browse by subject” to Accounting journals (click on “Business, Management and Accounting”). Contains full text and bibliographic information for many topics in the fields of accounting and auditing. Author searches are done on the last name only. (Note: TTU Library does not subscribe to all the journals in the SD collection.)

- LexisNexis Academic
Full-text news, business, and legal publications. Access over 15,000 news, business, and legal sources. News coverage includes deep archives and instant coverage of stories in national and regional newspapers, wire services, broadcast transcripts, international news, and non-English language sources. Areas of interest specific to Accounting researchers: Accounting & Tax Law Links; SEC Filings

- Emerald Insight
Business research resource covering 35 thousand full-text articles from 1994 to the present. Either ‘Search’ for accounting-related keywords, or select ‘Accounting and Finance’ to browse (or search within) nearly thirty finance/accounting journals.

- SpringerLink
Central access point for journals, book series, books, reference works and the Online Archives Collection. Under “Subject Collection,” click on “Business and Economics,” then start searching within over 111,000 related items.

The Library subscribes to a number of Open Text Book Resources that can be used for your classes, free of charge to students.

All textbooks have been vetted and peer-reviewed by faculty in their respective fields and are already used at other institutions.

Talk with your Librarian to see if any of these materials can be used for your class; studies show that use of free, online textbooks makes students happy and retention goes up.

Just Remember: List on your SYLLABUS!
