Why Study Pre-Occupational Therapy at Texas Tech?

Pre-Occupational Therapy is considered a designation at Texas Tech University; it is not a major. Pre-Occupational Therapy students take the required courses in order to apply to an occupational therapy program. Pre-Occupational Therapy students have the option to major in any area they choose as long as they take the prerequisite courses required to enter an occupational therapy program along with the courses needed to earn a degree at Texas Tech University.

Occupational therapy is skilled treatment that helps individuals achieve independence in all facets of their lives. Occupational therapists provide people with the skills they need to live independent and satisfying lives. Occupational Therapists assist clients in performing activities of all types, ranging from using a computer to caring for daily needs such as dressing, cooking, eating, and driving. Occupational therapists' services typically include: customized treatment programs to improve one's ability to perform daily activities, comprehensive home and job site evaluations with adaptation recommendations, performance skills assessments and treatment, adaptive equipment recommendations and usage training, and guidance to family members and caregivers.

A Bachelor's Degree is required prior to beginning the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center School of Allied Health Sciences Occupational Therapy Program.
