ARTS MANAGEMENT MFA PERIODIC ASSESSMENT

Texas Tech University Department of Theatre & Dance

This assessment process is required for all Arts Management MFA students. It is optional for PhD students with an Arts Management track.

The Assessment Process

1. On the last day of classes for each long semester the student will present the Arts Management Program Head with a written self-assessment. This document will include clear, concise entries for all of the indicated assessment topics.
2. The Program Head will read the student’s self-assessment and will add to it his own assessment of the student’s progress.
3. During the scheduled semester exam week, the student will meet with the Program Head for the purpose of discussing the assessment documents. The student will take the initiative to schedule this appointment and will do so on or before the final day of classes.
4. After the conference, the Program Head will place the assessment documents in the student’s file.
5. Students whose assessments demonstrate that they lack potential for success in the profession may be dismissed from the program.

The Self-Assessment Document

Format: The self-assessment will be typed, double spaced and will be 3-5 pages in length. It will deal with all listed assessment topics, even if the only response is “nothing to report.” The assessment must be organized clearly with each topic labeled.

Heading: Your name, ID number, today’s date, semester/year you entered the program, and semester/year of expected graduation.

- What arts management duties did you accomplish this semester? (Box Office, House Supervision, Internship, etc.)
- Rate yourself in the execution of the above duties.
