The Texas Tech chapter of PRSSA (Public Relations Student Society of America) is open to students interested in professional development, networking and increased practical knowledge for which future employers are looking. Members meet regularly with strategic communication professionals from a variety of corporations and agencies. More information can be found at raiderprssa.com.

RaiderComm is a student-run, full-service public relations and strategic communication management agency. It provides an opportunity for members to develop as professionals, learn new skills and apply their coursework to real-world accounts for a wide-range of clients. Members learn about new business development, client relation management and campaign implementation. More information can be found at raidercommpr.wixsite.com/rcpr.
