Where do I request a development shell?

Development Shells are already formatted with a standard course design template which includes student and instructor resources as well as other components which help to jumpstart the development of your course. Please note that a development course does not support student access – it is strictly an avenue for developing your course. To request a Development Shell, go to the following link and fill out an individual request form for each Blackboard course you need to develop. Request a Development Shell.