PlayPosit Peer Review Assignment

PlayPosit peer review assignments require students to submit a video or “bulb” (“bulb” is PlayPosit terminology for an interactive video). Class members or group members then peer review each other’s videos as part of the assignment. Depending on how you set up the assignment, students provide criterion-based feedback using a rubric that you create, and post feedback comments in a discussion forum. You can require students to review all their classmates’ videos, or you can assign students to groups that review only their group members’ videos.

You may want to assign a regular PlayPosit bulb to students before assigning a peer review assignment to:

- ensure that all students will be available to add to groups (if you use groups).
- familiarize students with the process of taking a PlayPosit bulb.

For more information and instructions, refer to PlayPosit Interactive Video in Blackboard.

PlayPosit peer review assignments have two steps: Step 1: Create PlayPosit Peer Review Assignment; and Step 2: Grade PlayPosit Peer Review Assignment.
