& Student Success

Below you will find information about our upcoming programming for graduate students and postdocs, along with information and resources for faculty.

Is your grad student working on their thesis or dissertation?

Encourage them to jumpstart their progress with Thesis and Dissertation Boot Camps.

Thesis & Dissertation Boot Camps

GWC Thesis and Dissertation Boot Camps are designed to help graduate writers make progress toward completion. Online and in-person options are available. Winter 2025 applications due January 21.

Is your student or postdoc working on long-term projects (publications, thesis or dissertation, job materials)?

Graduate Writing Groups offer community and accountability throughout the semester to help them stay on track.

Graduate Writing Groups

Graduate students and postdocs can benefit from the accountability of regularly working alongside others to make progress toward writing goals. Online and in-person groups are available. Spring 2025 applications due January 28.

Would your student or postdoc benefit from another perspective on their writing?

Whether your student is working on the big picture or the basics, one-to-one consultations are a great opportunity for students and postdocs to develop their writing with our experienced consultants.

Consultations

Our consultants come from departments across campus and include DGSAs, GPTIs, and professional consultants. 50-minute face-to-face, synchronous online, and written feedback options are available.

We split funding! If you know an amazing writer, please send them our way for overload or split-GPTI opportunities.

We also have resources for you!

- Consultations for Extra Credit or Assignments
- In-Class Orientations & Workshops
- Exam Policy
