

We create chemistry

BASF Trait Development Intern TX

Start Date: Between March 1 – April 1, 2022

Location: Lubbock, TX

Hours: Flexible during the school year, 40 to 60 hours per week in the summer

Contact: Jacob Reed – 806-241-0667 jacob.reed@basf.com

Job Description:

The BASF Trait Development Research and Development Specialist (RDS) is looking for an intern to assist with R&D field trials, demonstration plots, and assistance for the Lubbock Research Farm.

Responsibilities:

- Assisting with the execution of R&D trials and farm operations. Includes, but not limited to, the establishment, management, and evaluation of trials involving herbicides, water use efficiency, and agronomic performance.
- Assisting the local RDS with trial data entry, trial setup, in-field applications, data collection, summarization and communication. Some travel is required
- Operating and maintaining equipment required to execute field trials
- Maintaining awareness of competitive commercial and experimental compounds communicating pertinent information to RDS and Station Manager.
- Keeping current on BASF safety awareness, Regulatory, and Stewardship compliance training and executing assigned duties in accordance with BASF's Safety and Code of Conduct Standards

Qualifications:

- College student seeking experience in industry
- Mechanical, farm, or research experience preferred
- Willingness to work outdoors, promptness, organized and detail-oriented, willing to follow directions, team player, reliable
- Must be able to lift 50 pounds regularly and work in dusty, sunny, hot environments while wearing proper Personal Protective Equipment.

BASF is an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, age, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, genetic information, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Internal