*Most firms hiring finance majors strongly encourage at least one internship experience during the summer between the student's junior and senior years, and many if not most of the "preferred" firms wish to see an internship experience in the summer between the student's sophomore and junior years. Furthermore, many top employers will hire students for the summer internship spots in September of the year preceding the internship. Therefore, it is critical that students take FIN 3320 in the spring of their sophomore year, and visit the Rawls Career Management Center before the start of the fall of their sophomore year, at the latest.
